

TAFT URGES MONEY TO CONTINUE WORK

SENDS SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS ASKING FOR AP-
PROPRIATION OF $250,000.

A MATTER OF ECONOMY

Favors Continuance of Investigation on Part of Economy Commission
During Coming Two Years.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Congress was asked today in a special message from the president to appropriate $250,000 for continuing the investigation of the commission on economy and efficiency into the executive department of the government.

In his message the president points out "there is no greater service that can be rendered to the country than that of the continuance of the work of the commission until some form of organization is provided for continuing this kind of work under the executive."

At a total cost of about $250,000 during the twenty-one months covered by the work of the commission facts have been developed and recommendations have been made that it followed up will result in savings of millions of dollars each year. This has been done under the handicap of inadequate funds and uncertainty of continuance which interfered with the making of plans which could not be completely executed within a few months. It would be very much to the advantage of the administration if the president were authorized to spend whatever amount he may deem necessary within the next two years. The only condition attached being that he render an account of expenditures.

Referring to the fact that it has not been possible for the commission to make final detailed reports on more than a few of the hundreds of offices in Washington, the president says the report submitted will serve to illustrate the character of results which may follow an extensive investigation of office technique and procedure.

"It is further to be noted," continued the president, "that the offices which have been reported on are those which have been frequently under scrutiny. From what is known of the offices outside of Washington it is thought that it is in this field that the largest opportunities for economy will be found."

"As illustrating the relative importance of service outside of Washington, it is of interest to note that the cost of clerk hire at the New York postoffice alone is more than that incurred in the departments of war, navy, state, justice and commerce and labor."

The president expresses the opinion that the technique and procedure of every branch and office of the government should be submitted to as painstaking examination as that given those on which reports have been made. To do this, however, President Taft says that ample funds must be provided, and he asks that congress make the $250,000 appropriation by March 4 for the incoming president.

"In my opinion," says the president, "this is not a matter in which the congress should assume that public money will be wisely spent at Washington, that in the custom house at New York the cost of clerk hire is greater than in any one department at Washington."

The report of the commission contains a description of one hundred and ten subjects the result of twenty one months of work. The changes recommended by the commission carry definite estimates of a yearly saving of several million dollars.

The second lap of the tariff revision hearings before the house ways and means committee was reached today when the committee took up schedule "B" Earthenware and glassware.

There is no democratic bill serving as a basis for this schedule as in the case of the chemical schedule and the arguments today were aimed directly at any changes in the present earthenware and glassware schedule of the Payne-Aldrich law. The schedule reopened allegations of a so-called glass trust. It has been represented to the committee that the American production of plate glass, about fifty million square feet annually, produced by only twelve manufacturers.

Advocates of tariff reduction contend the duties could be cut one-half without injuring the American manufacturers.

Congress was called upon today to meet the plans for the inauguration of President Wilson by passing a bill drawn and presented by the local committee having the ceremony in charge. The measure provides among other things for a congressional grant of the pension bureau building for the inaugural ball.

Many members of the house are said to be opposed to any increasing of the work of the bureau which is now tied to its capacity.

More expert advice on how to remodel the monetary system of the United States to provide an elastic currency and strong centralized reserve was heard today by the Glass committee of the house. The principal witnesses called were Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, and Prof. J. Lawrence Laughlin, of Chicago.

Questions asked by the democratic members of the committee seem to indicate that the committee favors the establishment of a system of divisional reserve banks, operated under close government supervision as a substitute for the national monetary commission's proposed central bank.

Affairs of the national banks particularly their loans and securities for loans, were before the house money trust committee for investigation today.

Comptroller Lawrence O. Murray was the principal witness today.

MAKE PREPARATIONS TO REORGANIZE ARMY

High Ranking of Officers Meet With Officials of War Department to Discuss Details of Plan.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—A dozen of the highest ranking officers of the United States Army met in conference here today to discuss the details of the extensive plan of reorganization of the army, which will be the last important military action of the retiring administration. The plan, which was first made public last summer, contemplates the abolition of the present army departments and the creation of brigades as units in different parts of the country, all so arranged and proportioned in respect to the various arms of the service as to be capable of concentration at a moment's notice into regular army corps.

The sponsors for the plan of reorganization appreciate the fact that it cannot be carried out except in the face of much opposition. If the departments are abolished it will mean the passing also of a great many small posts throughout the country, a move that would certainly draw forth bitter opposition of many senators and representatives of states and localities in which army posts are located.

LOOK FOR DEADLOCK OVER SENATORSHIP

No Party Holds a Majority in Either
House of Illinois Legislature Or On Joint Ballot.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—The forty-eighth general assembly of Illinois, which convened at noon today, will be called upon to elect two United States senators, one to succeed Shelby M. Cullom, whose term will expire next March, and the other to fill the vacancy caused by the expulsion of William Lorimer. With a band of twenty-five legislators from the Progressive party fighting Republicans and Democrats and no party holding a majority in either house or on joint ballot, all signs point to one of the liveliest sessions seen here in years.

Not only does a deadlock in connection with the senatorships appear to be almost a certainty, but a bitter contest over the organization of the legislature, which may delay the regular work of the session for weeks, is indicated today. Numerous contests have been filed against holders of certificates of election to the lower house, and these contests must be disposed of before the real work of the session is taken up. The seat of nearly every progressive member is contested, on the ground that the Progressive party had no right to a party circle and that legislative candidates in that column had no right, therefore, to three votes each under the cumulative voting system.

GOV. SIMEON E. BALDWIN
COMMENCES SECOND TERM

Harford, Conn., Jan. 8.—Simeon E. Baldwin was today inaugurated for his second term as governor of Connecticut. The oath of office was taken before the general assembly in joint convention, and an unusually large gathering of prominent citizens of the state. The ceremony was preceded by the usual military display.

At noon the state legislature assembled for its biennial session. The chief measures that are to be brought forward during the winter are: Employers' liability, workmen's compensation, industrial insurance, registration of legislative agents, repeal of the personal tax law, revision of state banking laws, liberalizing Sunday laws, and bills to promote the welfare of women and minors in industrial and mercantile establishments. Another effort will be made to secure ratification of the amendment of the Federal Constitution for an income tax.

CHARGES PREFERRED AGAINST THREE MEN

Robbery and Assault With Intent to Kill Charged Against Three Of Four Alleged Auto Bandits.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Three of the four alleged auto bandits who are said by police to have committed a score or more of robberies in the past month formally were charged with various crimes today.

Hubert Saucier, alias Catfish was booked "for robbery." James Mitchell, was charged with assault with intent to kill; and Albert Chrest was booked on similar charge. Frederick P. Miller today identified Chrest as one of the two men who robbed him of $1,500 on October 16.

Saucier Closely Guarded.
Apparently on the verge of collapse Hubert Saucier, alias Catfish leader of the three alleged auto bandits who is said to have confessed to three daring hold-ups and twenty burglaries is being closely guarded today. The prisoner is said to have threatened to kill himself.

ADMIRAL REBUTTED AFTER BEING BUTTED BY GOAT

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 8.—A belligerent goat's lack of respect for the uniform it was said today, was the cause for an order of Rear Admiral R. M. Doyle banishing all of the sailors' pets and mascots from battleships, cruisers and receiving ships at this station. Admiral Doyle is supposed to have been inside the uniform when the goat, a mascot aboard the New Hampshire, butted it so vigorously that it toppled over on the deck. The goat, now in exile, and with him went a long train of cats, dogs, parrots, bears and other goats.

MAGNATE UNABLE TO TALK, SAYS DOCTOR

William Rockefeller's Physician Says
Patient Has Throat Trouble
And Cannot Testify.

New York, Jan. 8.—William Rockefeller probably will never be able to appear as a witness in the finance inquiry being conducted by the Pujo committee at Washington, in the opinion of Dr. Walter F. Chappell, his physician. The only way he could answer questions on the witness stand would be in writing, for speech might result in strangulation. So serious is the condition of Mr. Rockefeller's throat according to the physician's statement published here today, Dr. Chappell said that Mr. Rockefeller probably must remain silent for the rest of his life. In the Bahamas, where Mr. Rockefeller now is resting, he is keeping very quiet and it is declared that his every wish has to be written for any efforts to speak involves the hazard of a laryngeal spasm.

COACH ON ELEVATED FALLS INTO STREET

Two Men Passengers Escape Death in Deraillment on Chicago Loop
This Morning.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The rear coach of a Chicago & Oak Park elevated road train became derailed and fell from elevated structure to the street at the Fifth Avenue and Van Buren street curve on the Union loop today.

Two men passengers who were in the car when it left the rails and bumped over the ties for 20 feet before plunging from the elevated structure escaped injuries by stepping into a forward car.

The train had discharged most of its load of several hundred passengers and was retreating to the Western terminal of the line when the accident occurred.

OPEN ANOTHER CAMPAIGN FOR COMMISSION PLAN

Ashland, Jan. 1.—Ashland will probably go through the throes of another campaign for commission form of government this winter. Petitions were started today following a mass meeting which was addressed by May Konkak. Konkak boosted the commission form and its supporters claim they can easily secure enough signatures to force a special election. Mayor Dodd, who is opposed to the commission plan, has come out in a signed statement urging the voters to think twice before signing.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS MEETING IN CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 8.—The annual convention of the National League of Commission Merchants met in this city today with a large attendance of members from Chicago, New York, Buffalo, St. Louis, Kansas City, New Orleans and numerous other places. The sessions will continue three days, during which time a wide variety of subjects relating to the commission business will be considered.

FIRE DESTROYED GROCERY WAREHOUSE AT PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 8.—The main warehouse of the Oakford & Fahnstock Wholesale Grocery company was destroyed by fire of unknown origin today. The loss is covered by insurance. The loss was $200,000. Damages caused by smoke and water resulted in an additional loss of several thousand dollars to the H. F. Droblich Wholesale Grocery Brokerage company and the Ellen & Large Wholesale Cigar company, in the same building.

ALLEGED WHITE SLAYER CAPTURED IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Jan. 8.—Joseph Miller, an alleged "white slaver," was captured by detectives yesterday in a secret room in the basement of his residence, ending a three years' chase. He is held with his wife on warrants charging them with being unlawfully in the United States.

CALIFORNIA ORANGES REPORTED AS SAVED

GROWERS STATE THAT AT LEAST
HALF OF CROP WILL BE MARKETABLE.

WEATHER MODERATES

Deep Snow in the Extreme Northwest
—Chicago-New York Telegraph Wires in Trouble.

Los Angeles, Jan. 8.—With marked higher temperatures prevailing smudges were successful last night in saving oranges and lemons that had been only slightly nipped by the cold of the previous two days. According to citrus experts fully half of the fifty million dollars crop may be found to be in marketable condition.

Grove Uninjured.
Many groves were reported uninjured in San Bernardino county and near Santa Anna, thirty-five miles southeast of Los Angeles. The growers saw a ray of hope in the fact that a sudden thaw which was feared last night did not materialize. The weather bureau forecast that the return to normal conditions would be gradual.

At Bakerfield.
Bakerfield, Calif., Jan. 8.—A temperature of 20 degrees greeted Bakerfield this morning but orchardists say they have made a winning fight to save their young trees.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 8.—With more than twenty feet of snow in the mountains a Chinook wind blowing from the southwest, and rain forecast for western Washington railroad officials and residents of the valley are living in dread of avalanches and floods. As a result of which there may be loss of life as well as the destruction of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property.

Railroads Open.
The Northern Pacific lines still are open, but all trains are running several hours late. Great Northern and Milwaukee trains are being routed over the Northwestern Pacific tracks.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Telegraph wires between New York and Chicago were prostrated today as a result of the sleet and wind storm last night conditions are reported the worst in years.

Brokers Handicapped.
When the markets opened only one Chicago broker had a wire, and he offered to help out other brokers so far as possible. This wire the only one working, went down after being in use only half an hour. Telegrams of all kinds were congested in the offices of the telegraph company.

Hundreds of poles with their wires broke under the pressure of the storm. Eighty poles went down in Toledo alone. Greatest damage was done in Illinois and in northern Indiana and Ohio.

At Kansas City.
St. Louis City, Mo., Jan. 8.—The temperature dropped to ten degrees below zero last night the coldest of the winter.

Snow Slides.
Seward, B. C., Jan. 8.—A snow slide from International Mountain opposite the Bitter Creek town site tore across the Bear River last night destroying the Forks Hotel and a store across the street. The occupants escaped unhurt.

CALIFORNIA MAN ELECTED
HEAD OF THE COMMISSION

Washington, Jan. 8.—Commissioner Franklin K. Lane of California was elected today by the interstate commerce commission to serve as its chairman for the year beginning Jan. 13. He succeeds Commissioner Charles A. Proulx. Mr. Lane has been a member of the commission since 1903.

ONLY THREE SURVIVE OUT OF CREW OF THIRTY-SIX

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 8.—Of the ship's company of thirty-six, who sailed from San Francisco in the ill-fated oil tanker Rosecrans, only three survive, the vessel sinking yesterday on the rocks of Peacock Spit.

Women Are Better
Buyers Than Men

Woman is the purchasing head of the home. She not only buys most of the things used in the home, but most of the things used by the man of each family as well. She purchases the food, clothing, furnishings, and utilities; buys the children's outfits and several times as much for her own use as is needed by the average man. It is natural, therefore, that she should read advertisements more than men, because advertising keeps her posted on the newest and best merchandise, the best stores at which to trade, and the best values obtainable. She buys things to better advantage than a man—makes the money go farther—by reading advertisements. Read the advertisements in The Gazette closely and constantly every day for the sake of ECONOMY.

SHORT BALLOT BILL TO BE INTRODUCED

Plan Which Will Make Governor
Responsible Head of State
Urged for Adoption in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—An effort will be made to pass a bill for the short ballot at this session of the legislature. Under such a law the governor would be made the responsible head of the state instead of merely the nominal one, which he must be so long as his department managers are chosen by someone else and are perhaps actually hostile to his plans. The believers in this ballot system declare that the power of appointment should be absolute without confirmation by the senate. Under this plan the governors would be able to remove appointees at his pleasure. The National Short Ballot Organization has already begun to circulate the members of the Wisconsin legislature.

"When such a proposal is made a cry will at once be raised that the governor will build up a personal machine," says the letter sent out by the league to members. "This will sound plausible to the opposition but the answer is simple. In the first place the people have more direct control. If the appointments are made by their own responsible chief executive than by an unofficial, and hence irresponsible, party leader. If you are to have popular, responsible and efficient government you will have to take whatever chances there may be in giving power to the people's chosen executive. Bad government in the past has sprung mainly from incomplete responsibility."

WOMEN POLITICIANS TO PICK OFFICERS

Interest of Woman's Democratic League
Meeting Centered in Election Today.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Chief interest in today's session of the Woman's National Democratic League centered in the election of officers and the reading of a letter from president-elect Wilson on Democratic principles. It was read by Mrs. Stevens Ayres, corresponding secretary and wife of Rep. Ayres of New York.

The principal contest was over the election of president of the league. The two leading candidates were Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby of New York, who seeks reelection and Mrs. Ayres.

ADOPT MEASURES TO STOP PETTY VICES

School Board of Spring Valley Is Trying to Stamp Out Use of Snuff and Cigarettes by Pupils.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—Radical measures have been adopted by the school board of Spring Valley to stamp out the use of snuff and cigarettes by the pupils of the school. The following resolutions presented by Principal Olsen of the board have been unanimously adopted by the board.

"Be it resolved that no pupil of the Spring Valley public school who habitually uses tobacco, snuff or liquor in any form or manner whatsoever, shall be promoted from one grade to another or graduated from said schools."

This rule, it is said, will be rigidly enforced by Principal Olsen and every teacher of the Spring Valley school.

WOULD PROHIBIT CLERKS RETAINING PART OF FEE

Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—County clerks who have been accustomed to retain ten cents out of the $1 exacted for each hunting license are hit by a measure which will come into the Wisconsin legislature. It will specify that the whole license fee shall go into the county treasury. The assumption of its sponsors is that the county clerk draws a salary and is entitled to no perquisites; the character mentioned in some counties the fees retained by the clerks have amounted to hundreds of dollars each year.

NEENAH FARMER PAYS FINE FOR SELLING DIRTY MILK.

Neenah, Wis., Jan. 8.—Albert Karow, a farmer, sold milk from dirty cows, which he kept to creameries. He was arrested by Dairy Inspector Adershold and paid a heavy fine. Other arrests are expected soon.

FOX RIVER VALLEY TOWNS BEGIN RAILROAD FIGHT.

Neenah, Jan. 8.—Fox River Valley freight shippers are hot on the trail of the railroads traversing the valley. Improved freight and passenger service will be the subject of a concerted demand by the various commercial clubs from Marinette to Fond du Lac. Early action is to be taken before the state railroad commission if necessary.

BIG REALTY COMPANY ORGANIZED AT NEENAH.

Neenah, Jan. 8.—The Twin City Realty Company is a new organization which has just been organized to promote several big real estate transactions in the Twin Cities. The company will build a large number of houses next spring to provide homes for workmen for the numerous new industries which are being located here.

ASSESS HEAVY TAX ON UHLEIN ESTATE

Inheritance Tax on Wealthy Brew-er's Property Will Amount to $78,000.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—The latest inheritance tax case settled by Special Inheritance Investigator John Harrington during the quarter from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, 1912, was that of August Uhlein, wealthy Milwaukee brewer. Under the estate's clear value of over $3,000,000, a tax of $78,456.06 was fixed. The Marshall Field estate case was settled by compromise, the tax paid on Wisconsin stocks being $75,000. The entire tax assessed against the Edward Rutledge estate of Chippewa county was $33,704.75.

An appeal from the lower court's decision in the Joseph Dessert case, from Milwaukee county, now perfected to the supreme court, involves the important question as to what constitutes the conveyance in contemplation of death. The case was decided adversely to the state.

The Owen T. Dennison estate paid a tax of $34,494. A dispute as to the payment of the tax upon the death of both husband and wife was adjudicated.

In the Cornelia Ingram estate, Eun Claire, the amount shown by the inventory was increased by the addition of $80,000 and a substantial agreement was reached that the tax be assessed upon the estate so increased and amounting to $305,057.60.

In the estate of Alexander Stewart of Wausau, former congressman, it was determined the Wisconsin property will amount to about $1,500,000. Stewart removed to Washington, D. C., before his death.

SENATORIAL CONTEST WILL BE CLOSE ONE

Progressives Possess Balance of Power in West Virginia Legislature—Favor Col. Edwards.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 8.—In the close of the short special session of the West Virginia legislature and the opening of the regular biennial session today, the contest for United States senator to succeed Clarence M. Watson is on in earnest. The Progressives possess the balance of power in the legislature and as a result former Governor W. M. C. Dawson, who is the West Virginia committeeman of the Progressive party is believed to hold the key to the senatorial contest. Mr. Dawson's choice for the senatorship is Col. William S. Edwards, a wealthy oil operator of Charleston. Col. Edwards claims to be both Progressive and Republican and is the West Virginia committeeman of the Republican party. There are others prepared to fight for the toga, but at present it looks as though Edwards is on top. Dave Elkins, son of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins, and Isaac T. Mann of Braunwell, both of them regular Republicans, have been in the running for some time. Former Congressman H. P. Hubbard of Wheeling, former Governor A. B. White of Parkersburg, E. A. Showalter of Fairmont and Judge John A. Mason of Fairmont are others who are looked upon as candidates.

LEADER OF AUSTRALIAN OPPOSITION RESIGNS.

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 8.—Alfred Deakin, leader of the Opposition in the commonwealth house of representatives resigned that position today on orders from his doctors. He will retire from present life at the dissolution of the present parliament.

DOCK LABORERS' STRIKE HITS TRADE AT PERU PORT.

Callao, Peru, Jan. 8.—The shipping industry of this port was brought to a complete standstill today by a general strike of dock laborers and longshore men. Efforts are being made to settle the dispute by arbitration.

ITALIAN QUEEN HELENA CELEBRATES HER BIRTHDAY.

Rome, Jan. 8.—Queen Helena today celebrated her fortieth birthday anniversary and was the recipient of many presents and messages of greeting from her relatives and the various royal families of Europe. In accordance with the wish of her Majesty the anniversary of her birth is not a state occasion, but is always celebrated by a quiet family gathering at the Quirinal. The Queen is a daughter of the ruler of Montenegro and, quite naturally, it is with a strong feeling of personal interest that she has followed the progress of the stirring events in the Balkans the past few months.

CHILD LABOR CONDITIONS IN FOX RIVER VALLEY.

Neenah, Jan. 8.—Cergymen of the Twin Cities will unite in holding a special observance of child labor day on January 26. Acting upon the appeal of the national child labor committee improved child labor conditions in the Fox River Valley will be the subject under discussion.

MARINETTE MINISTERS FAIL

OFFICE BY MCGOVERN

SENSATIONAL ACTION BY GOVERN-OR RESULT OF SPEAKER-
SHIP ELECTION.

FOR POLITICAL ACTIVITY

Is Charge Brought Against Insurance
Commissioner—May Bring About
Strong Fight by La Follette
Men in Legislature.

Madison, Jan. 8.—Following a public hearing this morning Commissioner of Insurance Herman L. Ekern, was formally removed from office by Gov. McGovern on the ground of "willful misconduct or neglect of duty" as commissioner.

The duty arose over Ekern's reported activity in the interests of the L. J. Johnson candidacy for speaker of the assembly. "Superintendent of public property W. L. Essmann served the removal order on Ekern shortly before noon. The hearing was animated at times, John A. Alward, attorney for Ekern, disputing the governor's method of conducting it.

The complaint against Ekern was signed by Harry C. Wilbur. The examination turned on the question whether Ekern had acted in any way as manager or member of Johnson committee which the commissioner answered in the negative. Gov. McGovern questioned Ekern as to whether the latter had called men to his office to talk over Johnson's candidacy.

Ekern said he had told Theodore Thomas of Ladysmith, to tell A. J. Richards he desired to see him, but that it was in relation to another matter. The speakership fight was discussed, however, he added. The governor inquired whether Ekern had not written letters on Johnson's candidacy.

Ekern replied he presumed he had mentioned it. The hearing became tense with excitement when frequent for the governor objected to Attorney Alward's line of examination and made it known that he (the governor) was conducting it. Mr. Alward retorted that he himself was being governed by the "rules of court on the law."

The first witness was George P. Gifford, proprietor of the Avenue Hotel. He testified to reserving rooms for Johnson in response to a telephone communication from Ekern, but said that nothing to lead him to believe that he, Ekern, was acting as Johnson's manager.

Harry C. Wilbur, executive clerk, related the interview between the governor and Ekern in the office last Monday night. He testified that Ekern told the governor he favored Johnson's candidacy and then added "or Dr. Goff's." The governor, he testified, told Ekern there was but one governor and that his office was in the east wing.

Ekern will begin a legal battle to regain his position.

It is said that Clem P. Host, of Milwaukee, may be appointed insurance commissioner.

WANT WISCONSIN EXHIBIT

AT PANAMA EXPOSITION

University Alumni in Northern California Pass Resolution on Matter at a Recent Meeting.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—The Wisconsin Alumni Association of Northern California has passed resolutions calling upon the Wisconsin legislature to make suitable appropriation so that the Bazaar state may be represented in a fitting manner at the Panama-California exposition at San Francisco in 1915.

Prompt action is urged, in order that a suitable site may be selected. Particular request is made that the University of Wisconsin make as complete an exhibit of its educational facilities and work as possible. The exposition company is donating free of cost to the states and territories the title to the various sites on which to erect buildings. At the meeting at which this action of the Wisconsin alumni was taken, Frederick H. Whitton, '89, was elected president; Francis S. C. James, '04, B. A. '05, vice president; and Frank V. Cornish, '06, secretary-treasurer.

The former residents of Wisconsin in California, says the committee, are anxious to have a representative of the governor make a visit to San Francisco as soon as possible.

ONE PROGRESSIVE LAWMAKER

IN MISSOURI LEGISLATURE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 8.—With the Democrats in overwhelming control, the Missouri legislature assembled for its biennial session today, meeting in the temporary structure which is the house of state officers during the construction of the new Capitol. The membership of the house includes one Progressive, J. H. Stone, of Merion county, and it is predicted that he will be the floor leader of his party and will be entitled to membership on every committee. Home rule for cities, amendments to the state primary law, and the direct election of United States senators are among the important measures to be brought before the legislature this session.

CITY ATTORNEY W. DOUGHERTY DISARMS CRITICISMS AS TO PURCHASE.

LITIGATION AVOIDED

Question as to Legality of Election Identical With Racine Case Soon to be Tried in Courts.

That the course he had pursued with regard to bringing about the sale of the Janesville waterworks to the city was calculated to effect the purpose as soon as possible and without causing expensive litigation for the city was the statement made by City Attorney W. H. Dougherty who last night addressed the Brotherhood of the Methodist church on the subject of the "Legal Aspects of the Recall." The other speakers on the program were, Mayor James A. Fathers, who spoke on "The Commission Form of Government," and Judge W. D. North of Edgerton, who gave an address on "Law Enforcement." The program followed the serving of a banquet in the church dining room, and the meeting was presided over by F. H. Blacque.

Attorney Dougherty in opening his address recalled some of the defects of the recall, which he said led him to declare them illegal. He said that he hoped the promoters of the new recall petitions would succeed in bringing about an election as it would be good for the city to get it out of its system, to settle the question once and for all. The alleged business aspect of the recall was a joke; the council could not make a business of it. There was no issue in a recall campaign at the present time except the question of domination by men whose interests had been injured by law enforcement. Neither right, sense, nor decency was behind the movement to bring about a recall. The situation was ridiculous. Nevertheless, he cautioned and advised the men of the Brotherhood to organize and combat the supporters of the recall. If good government was defeated in Janesville it would be through want of organization of its friends.

Mr. Dougherty after touching upon the general legal phases of the recall, gave a detailed explanation of the Water Works situation, which may prove interesting reading in view of the fact that those in favor of the recall are endeavoring to make some capital out of this matter. He said in part as follows:

"In view of the fact that a recent public declaration sought to bring the Water Works matter within the issues of the recall it might be well at this time to make a somewhat extended explanation of that situation. If I remember correctly, the gist of this matter was given out in a published interview with the Mayor but conditions now prevailing seem to justify a more detailed statement.

Water Works Situation.
Why hasn't the present Council bought the Water Works? At the risk of being tedious I propose to answer that query in detail. Shortly after the present city government had perfected its organization the Council referred this Water Works matter to me for the purpose of determining whether or not the City was in legal position to ask the Commission for a valuation of the Water plant. The question submitted to the voters had been stated as follows: 'Shall the City of Janesville purchase the Janesville Water Company?' The words 'Water Company' being used instead of a proper designation of the water works plant. Now I am not so foolish as to contend that the voters were in the slightest degree misled by this error. I am aware that they voted to buy the Water Company, which is an entirely different proposition. The Water Company owns the Water plant but may also own a vast amount of other property not subject to public sale and no part of the plant equipment and no part of the plant equipment. I did think, however, that some very technical bond buyers might find some warrant for questioning the validity of a bond issue based on this vote. That they might raise objection simply for the purpose of affecting the market for the bonds would be no consolation to the City and would prove none the less embarrassing. If I am not mistaken the last bond issue for the new bridges had to be cured of its infirmity by an act of the legislature. I finally concluded however that the error was not substantial enough to warrant the expense and possible complications of a new election and advised going ahead with the valuation. As a matter of precaution, however, I thought it might be advisable to consult with the Railroad Commission and get its view of the situation, which I did. In this interview I was advised by the Chairman of the Railroad Commission of the pendency of a suit before the Commission which affected our local situation in more ways than one.

Legal Submission of Question.
In March, 1911, one year prior to our vote, the citizens of Racine voted to purchase the local Water Works and the question there submitted was also slightly inaccurate in its wording. In Racine as in Janesville no vote of payment was submitted to the voters. Just the bare question as to the purchase. In due course the Racine Water Company appeared before the Railroad Commission and objected to the jurisdiction of the commission to proceed to a valuation of its plant until the city of Racine had provided means of payment. In other words the Water Company claimed that no city had the right to ask for possession of a privately owned water plant until its obligation to pay the award had been irrevocably fixed. In this litigation the City of Racine was represented by its City Attorney and by the Hon. Burr W. Jones of Madison, while the Racine Water Company was represented by Thomas E. Kearney. After a careful investigation of this new phase of the question and after taking full counsel with the Railroad Commission itself I advised the local Council to defer its request for a valuation until after the Racine case was finally settled, which settlement was expected soon. I did this because I could not see the wisdom of getting into an expensive lawsuit, which was inevitable when other parties were fighting out our precise difficulty at no expense to us. About this time it was suggested by the Railroad Commission that the City and Water Company might agree on a valuation that would meet with the approval of the Railroad Commission, as was done at Manitowish. Some indifferent effort was made in this respect but nothing ever came of it. I say indifferent effort for the reason that the matter never received more than a passing consideration. Now the exact fact about this whole matter is that I have at all times acted exactly in accordance with the views of the Railroad Commission and nothing has been done without its full cognizance. In fact no move could be made without the sanction of the Commission, for it is this body that, under the law, must adjudge the value at a public hearing and by order certify the same to the Council and to the Utility.

Must Conform to Law.
There is no such thing as the City buying this water plant except in the way laid down by this Utility law, and if this law is found to be inadequate or faulty local government. All attach statements that I have made of this situation, which the Railroad Commission. If there is any fault to be found with the way in which this matter has been handled surely this body knows it. It might be well to suggest to those who are criticizing the present officers for their supposed delinquency in completing this deal that they should in all fairness give us the benefit of their superior knowledge. Why don't they publicly suggest what they think should be done? Why indulge in veiled allusion when the open suggestion might be the key to the whole situation? If they know the way to make it known. In all probability Mr. Jones, who is special counsel for the City of Racine and one of the ablest lawyers in Wisconsin, would also appreciate advice which would lead to an immediate adjustment. Some of this criticism is no doubt altogether honest in purpose but founded on a misconception of the situation. Some more of it I suspect is thrown out in the hope that it will fall on fertile soil and in proper season flourish and blossom into a vote.

Works proposition has long performed sturdy service as a local political issue and threatens soon to rival, in this respect, the ancient and honorable tariff question. The following extract from a letter written to me by the Chairman of the Railroad Commission should be a sufficient answer to any and all criticism. It reads as follows:

Racine Case Identical.
"As I informed you in our conversation, one of the objections interposed to the jurisdiction of the Commission in the Racine Water Company case is also presented in this case. The Racine Water Company has now taken this matter into Court and we are waiting for a ruling of the court. Should the court overrule the Commission, then it will be necessary for the city of Racine to again vote upon the proposition. It would also be necessary for the City of Janesville to again vote upon the proposition as the question submitted in the Janesville case is subject to all the alleged infirmities in the question in the Racine case."

Now I think it must be plain, that all that could presently be done by anyone is to start a little activity in the nature of an unnecessary lawsuit at the expense of the tax payers of Janesville. If I am in error in the conclusion and if the Chairman of the Railroad Commission who wrote the letter referred to is also mistaken we would be glad to be set right by anyone who has the proper solution of the difficulty. We are all anxious to conclude this purchase, but we must proceed in accordance with law.

Address of Mayor Fathers.
Mayor James A. Fathers, the first speaker on the program, had as his subject, "The Commission Form of Government." Because of the short time at his disposal, as he was obliged to attend another meeting, the mayor read his paper.

"First of all," said the mayor, "I am in favor of the commission form of government because it is possible to inject business into city government instead of politics."

"Second—The laws and regulations of the municipality can be enforced without the interference or influence of personal favoritism or political 'pull.'"

"Third—The council 'being on the job' at all times, makes it possible to do business whenever there is business to be done. Commission form of government seeks to go away with all petty politics, eliminates special privileges, and eliminates all quarrelsome dickering and bickering which is so apt to be usual in a large body of representatives elected from a small ward or district constituency."

Representatives from small districts in a municipality are sometimes prone to secure legislation of a selfish or personal character; consequently a council elected by a community as a whole is more apt to avoid those personal or selfish influences and can enforce the laws and regulations to a greater and more satisfactory degree."

The mayor mentioned the fact that upwards of 200 cities in more than thirty states are operating under the commission form of government. Although not as satisfactory as could be desired in every instance, the improvement over the old system is so marked that few cities ever talk of returning to the common council form of government. He stated that the annual report of the Janesville council due next April will contain facts and figures which will demonstrate that much more has been accomplished for the money expended than under the old system. At present the energies of the council are directed toward the systematic doing of the work for the future.

The New Appropriations.
In commenting on the 1912 budget Mayor Fathers stated that the benefits from the appropriation for an industrial school, one of the items responsible for the slight increase in its size, far exceed the fondest hopes of those who were entrusted with its expenditure. He also praised the work of the visiting nurses, whose services he believed would be of great value in the fight to stamp out tuberculosis, and in preventing and minimizing the numerous children's ailments. The purchase of the motor-driven chemical and hose wagon for the east side fire station, he said, was in the interest of efficiency and particularly economy.

"The mere fact that a city decides to adopt a commission form of government," added the mayor, "does not mean no taxes to pay. It means that what is raised by taxation shall be spent intelligently, economically and for the best interests of the city as a whole. If we have well lighted, well paved, well cleaned and dust-free streets, if we have a necessary and sound money, and the only way to raise money for its annual needs is by taxation and license revenues, after which the council is held to an accounting of the same and judicious expenditure of the same."

Law Enforcement Pledged.
"The adoption of the commission form of government means that there shall be law enforcement and regulation upon all matters pertaining to the welfare and good order of the city. It means that laws and regulations adopted from time to time shall be rigidly and effectively enforced without regard to persons, classes, or conditions; it means that no one line of business can be granted any more favors than any other business—all must stand upon an equal footing, with special privileges to none."

"To these principles, and to its record during the period of its incumbency, the council stands committed."

Judge North's Speech.
One of the most interesting addresses heard in Janesville in a long time was the talk on "Law Enforcement," given by Judge T. W. North of Edgerton. His address was devoted principally to an account of the successful campaign for law enforcement in his home city, and so full of humorous and tragic incidents that his hearers scarcely let a word escape them.

The peculiar position of Edgerton as the only city having saloons in fifty square miles of territory, made the matter of law enforcement especially difficult there, said the speaker. Stock trains from the north used to come into the city loaded with men who were impatient when they arrived and drunk when they left. On Christmas eve in 1909 the depot was filled with intoxicated persons, the streets were lined with them, and it was unsafe for women to be on the streets. A number of citizens made up their minds that a change for the better must come. They met at nine o'clock this morning, the Rev. Father Mahoney officiating. Four little boys acted as pall bearers. Internment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Idea as to Law.
Before entering upon an account of the various trials that came before him as justice of the peace, Judge North stated that he believed that although it was good law to consider a man innocent until proven guilty, he believed it was poor policy. His own theory is that if a justice has gone far enough into a case to issue a warrant, it is never right to assume that the prisoner is innocent. The practice of the opposite policy resulted in the freeing of a large number of guilty men. He also stated that his ideas of punishment were in conflict with the prevailing ones; that the present tendency to undue leniency was responsible for the United States leading in crimes of violence. There are, he said, three classes of criminals: first, those who commit crime out of ignorance; second, those who commit crime under great provocation, feel penitence and do not repeat the offense; third, the habitual criminal. The last class he said, was by far the largest and responsible for most crimes. Three of this type from one family had cost Jefferson county $10,000 each in the last few years.

"John Doe" Proceedings.
One of the most effective means of securing evidence for convictions of saloon keepers selling to black-listed persons had been the institution of the so-called "John Doe" proceedings. Complaints and warrants for "John Doe" were issued and witnesses subpoenaed on them. By examining these witnesses one at a time under oath, evidence could usually be received that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the guilty.

Black List Effective.
The speaker declared that the black list law was one of the best pieces of legislation ever enacted and that it could be and was rigidly enforced. Not only did the saloon keepers observe the law, but now it was hardly possible to get a drunkard to sell liquor to a black-listed person.

Judge North, in touching upon Janesville conditions, showed that he was more familiar with them than many of the people residing here on related incidents from his own experience that showed what kind of business interests were injured by law-enforcement and the price that was paid for their support in wrecked bodies and souls. The white slave traffic was no worse, and Janesville had not been immune from that.

WHAT IS THE USE OF CATCHING COLD?

None Whatever, Says a Prominent Physician.

S. B. Hartman, M. D., of Columbus, Ohio, sends out the following pungent and pointed advice to the reading public:

You catch cold easily. You have several colds every winter. You do not exactly have catarrh, and yet there is more or less stoppage in the nose. You have got so you expect to have a cold every month or so. Your trouble is lack of resistance. You lack vital powers to resist the climatic conditions. With anything that would raise the nervous tone or invigorate the nutritive system you could go right through the winter without catching cold. It is a foolish waste of energy and a reckless risk of your life to continue in this way.

I have a way to avoid all this, if you will take my advice. First, you should take a cold water towel bath every morning. It should be taken very rapidly, with a wet towel, and can be taken anywhere, in a hotel or a small bedroom. A quart of water is all that is necessary. Rub your self until you are thoroughly warm and dry.

Now, in addition to this you should take a tablespoonful of Peruna before each meal, and if you are out late at night and exposed somewhat to cold, crowds and stuffy rooms, take a tablespoonful before going to bed.

If you will follow these simple plain directions you won't catch cold again. Try it. Write me about it. I will work, and be worth a fortune to you. For men or women, old or young, strong or weak, this advice is applicable and there are no failures when it is properly followed.

INDIANA LUMBERMEN WILL AID RURAL DEVELOPMENT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 8.—Active aid in the campaign for the betterment of rural communities has been pledged by the Indiana Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, which met in this city today for its twenty-eighth annual convention. President B. J. McElrain of South Bend called the gathering to order this morning and delivered his annual address, which was followed by the reports of the other officers. A leading feature of the afternoon session was an address on "Urban and Rural Development" by L. C. Boyle, former attorney general of Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eddy and family and Mrs. Albert Deitloff and son, Otto, visited at the home of J. C. Eddy Sunday.

Mrs. Ira Larrabee has been on the sick list.
Miss Joan Wilkinson, River Road, was the guest of Helen Throne last Friday.

Charley Brickley of Harvard, the football sensation of 1912, may be barred from competing in amateur athletics. Harvard athletic authorities are reported as very much worried because Brickley has taken money for jobs which some persons say was more or less indirectly connected with his football ability. Brickley has made a pile of money during the past few months which he would not have made had it not been for his athletic fame. If the case comes before the Amateur Athletic union there will be an interesting problem to solve.

WILL ENFORCE A NEW RULE FOR BASKETBALL PLAYERS
Members of Y. M. C. A. Team Must Take Physical Training Work, Says Physical Director Hartwell.

Physical Director T. C. Hartwell of the Y. M. C. A. has announced a new ruling with regard to the basketball players on his team, and it is likely that the association quarter will line up quite differently than it has in previous contests. Under the new ruling, the members of the first team of the Y. M. C. A. will be picked only from players who take part in the physical training work. This disqualifies several of the present members of the squad, and while the team may not be in first-class shape to start with, Mr. Hartwell feels confident that by the middle of the season they will be playing at their best. The lineup for the Y. M. C. A. will be picked from among the best basketball men who have qualified under the new rule, as follows: Frank Ryder, Leo Chase, Lewis French, Allen Sanford, and Gus Bauer. Captain Mott will play with the team later in the season, but is out of the game for a couple of weeks on account of a fractured shoulder.

HIGH SCHOOL FIRST TEAM SHOWS MUCH IMPROVEMENT
Defeat Second Team in Strenuous Basketball Practice Game Last Night.

The first team at the high school is improving each night, as practice proceeds. Last night a last practice game was played between the first team and the second. The forwards on the first team were Atwood and Dalton and they showed up well. Although these places are not real definite for the men, still some indications are favoring these candidates in preference to 1. Stewart and Kuhlman. Ryan is showing up better at guard than he did at the first of the year. The first team trimmed the second by the score of 30 to 6. It is thought that the second squad is equally as good as some high school first teams, and the first team is exceptionally good for the first team to lead by. Two second teams opposed the first and the first team were pretty well exhausted at the end. The lineup and score was as follows:

First team—Atwood, 1; Dalton, 1; Hemming, 1; Edler, 1; Capt. Falter, 1.
Second team—L. Stewart and McKeigue, 1; Soullman and Stickney, 1; Connon and Cummings, 1; Kuhlman and Rau, 1; Ryan and Smiley, 1.

ton, the Chicago cue expert who lost the world's championship at 18.1 balkline billiards to Ora Morningstar last spring, will seek to regain the title in a match to be played with Morningstar in this city tomorrow night. The game will be at 500 points, and the winner will receive the title, a gold trophy emblematic of the championship, a share of the gate receipts and a purse of $1,000. In addition, each man has wagered $500 on the result, or a dollar a point. For several weeks each of the principals has been training for the big strain he will have to undergo, and both have been playing in excellent form.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.
The office hours of the city treasurer during the month of January will be from 8:30 to 12 a. m. and 1 to 6 p. m. on Wednesday and Saturday evenings from 7 to 8 o'clock.

GEO. W. MUENCHOW,
City Treasurer.

The area of low barometer that was in the lower Ohio valley yesterday has now reached New England. It has been attended by precipitation throughout the eastern half of the country. This was in the form of rain in the Ohio valley and southeastern states, but fell as snow in the Lake Region. The temperature has fallen in New England, in the Ohio valley and lower Mississippi valley but it continues warm in the south Atlantic states. It is cold in the West and Southwest, where high atmospheric pressure prevails. An area of low barometer is moving eastward through Alberta, and is attended by rainy weather and rising temperature on the North Pacific coast. Wisconsin will be under the influence of the area of high barometer in the West, today, tonight, and will therefore experience fair and continued cold weather. The minimum will probably be below zero in the morning.

Buob's Beer is a Health Food.

When you compare the nutritious elements of well made beer or malt with those of any dish you serve at your table you will find that the beer will more than hold its own with the most nourishing and healthful of foodstuffs. In beer your system receives the nourishment contained in the finest grains. The alcohol is present in such small quantity (about 3%) that it is entirely harmless.

Beer is a pleasant tonic—one that most men and women like. It helps you enjoy a meal and is, therefore, beneficial to digestion. If you do not have beer in the house you are missing a great deal of healthful pleasure. Phone and we will send you a case. The first order will insure subsequent ones.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.
 It is gratifying to know that the state of Wisconsin is taking active and intelligent interest in the public schools of the state and also that this forward movement is led by the educators, who have at last come to realize that the masses—representing 95 per cent of the children and young people—graduate from the grades, with but little to show for it.

The high schools have been freely criticised for conditions which exist, but the country schools are equally impractical, and efforts are now being made, through the State Board of Public Affairs at Madison, to arouse the country teachers to a sense of responsibility. To this end the Board is now sending out to the press of the state the following extract from the report on rural schools. The questions asked, is: "Does the school capitalize the out-of-school experience of the pupil?" The quotation follows and the answer is apparent.

"From earliest years the child reared in the country becomes responsible for the performances of tasks and chores which must be done regularly and at definite times. Wood must be cut, the pigs and calves fed, the cows must be milked and many other similar duties must be done. Out of these responsibilities grow trustworthiness, habits of work, the power of concentration and application. The child comes to the rural school vigorous, active, with senses keen and a strong impulse to do. He has acquired considerable knowledge of his environment. He has a splendid foundation for the study of geography, botany, zoology. He has some knowledge of soils; he knows why one field is better than another for a certain crop; in his observations of farm life he has been stimulated to reason upon causes such as wind, rain and sunshine. He is acquainted with the topography of the farm. He is familiar with plants and weeds on the farm. He knows clover, corn, potatoes, timothy and other plants and grasses. He knows how they grow, how they are harvested and of what use they are. He knows the farm animals, the trees, the flowers and many of the birds. All of these things have interested him because of their usefulness and their power to increase the family income. This extensive fund of information he brings to the school. Here it does not fit in. His introduction to school work is the traditional 'see the cat,' 'see the rat,' 'the cat sees the rat' and other worse than useless twaddle. Accustomed to doing things full of purpose, he fails to react under the stimulation of text book material to which his previous experience is unrelated. The teacher has failed to capitalize the child's experience. As a result, he becomes listless, indifferent and indolent."

WAGES AND COST OF HIGH LIVING.

A railroad president, discussing labor's demands for increased wages, tells the following story as illustrating that it is not the high cost of living from which we suffer, but the cost of high living. He says:

"There is many an American railroad employe who, if he searches his own heart, will admit that the large increases in wages which have been secured for him in recent years have brought him very little real comfort. 'I was talking the other day with a locomotive engineer who was thirty-five years old, and has drawn handsome wages for most of his industrial life. He told me that his father, who had been an engineer on the same road, had saved and left $6,000 when he died, living meanwhile a self-respecting life on much less pay than his son now gets. 'Not only have I been unable to save anything,' said the son, 'but I have spent some of the old man's earnings.'

"What did you do with your last increase in pay?" I asked him.

"Well, my wife wanted a new silk dress and the girls wanted a piano and so it went. In the end I was no better off than I was before."

"This," said the railroad president, "means that continued increases in pay, without regard to industrial conditions, breeds habits of extravagance which are harmful to the individual. In other words increased pay is a factor in creating the high cost of living."

That's practically the whole thing in a nutshell. The cost of living, with the average man, is the size of the income. The old engineer, referred to, lived at a time when economy was considered a virtue. His expenditures were governed by his needs, and with less than half the pay which his son received, he lived comfortably, and laid by a competency.

Today every want is regarded as a need, and we grapple these wants regardless of expense. The luxuries of life have come to be necessities, and incomes go a glimmering. The only thing that will effectively regulate the high cost of living, is practice of economy, and this responsibility rests with the individual. No law, except the law of necessity, can enforce it. Trusts may be abolished, and combines dismantled, in a vain hope to remedy the evil.

The man who possesses ambition to save money, can save it today easier than at any time in the history of the country, political economists to the contrary notwithstanding.

Justice North of Egerton, told the Methodist Brotherhood last evening how a little band of determined men cleaned up the town, and kept it clean. The justice court has gained a state-wide reputation for efficiency in dealing with offenders. The saloon men have discovered that it pays to obey the law. Their business is run without screens or loading facilities. The forty men on the black list find that reform is what they needed. There are no small fines or short sentences in Justice North's court, and the law commands respect because it is enforced to the letter. The country needs more men of this kind, on the bench. Crime is more prevalent today than at any time in the history of the nation, and the non-enforcement of law is largely responsible.

The mills of New England are very much stirred up over prospective tariff legislation, and efforts are being exhausted to prevent radical reduction. This is especially true of the woolen industry and local papers are filled with cartoons of soup houses and other evidences of poverty, which may result from free trade. The woolen mill companies are accused of having long been in a combine, and under a gentlemen's agreement are said to have regulated production and prices. Consumers have paid the freight, and contributed liberally to fat dividends. The feeling prevails, to large extent, throughout the west, that the industry is overprotected.

Some newspapers are advising the farmers to take advantage of the parcels post by shipping eggs and dairy products, direct to the consumer. Before they decide to do this it may be well for them to remember that the average city buyer pays his bills once a month, while some of them never pay at all. The farmer who goes into the retail business will need a book-keeper and collector, with a few new cuss-words added to his vocabulary. Credit for farm produce will be a new experience, and not very profitable. Better stick to the grocer, and let him peddle the eggs and butter.

The Ohio legislature is considering a bill which provides for the censorship of all newspapers published in the state. Its object is to discourage yellow journalism and to compel publishers to verify the truth of all stories which have to do with public or private character. The outcome will be watched with interest.

The fact that it required twenty-three years for the Chicago courts to reach a verdict in a damage suit, indicates that justice is exceedingly slow. In this particular case the company sued, has been out of business for many years and the attorneys and clients are most of them dead.

The loss of the California fruit crop by frost is a serious loss to the state and a set-back to the industry, which will be felt for years to come. The state of Florida had a similar experience, fifteen years ago, and has not yet fully recovered.

It is safe to assume that the petitions now being circulated for the recall, will be signed only by registered voters. There has been no change in the issue, and it will be interesting to read the list of names when published.

The supreme court has decided that corners on foodstuffs are illegal, but there is no law to prevent producers from storing their products, for a more favorable market.

EXPURGE-MOMENT

The Phrenologist.
 I went to a phrenologist.
 And had him rub my head;
 He felt it over carefully.
 And this is what he said:
 "Combateness is your main point.
 He found the bump where I'd been hit.
 With our good rolling pin.
 "Here's philoprogenitiveness.
 You love your nine kids well;
 Or maybe you have not a one,
 I really cannot tell.
 On veneration you are strong.
 You think your man-in-law
 Is just the nicest woman that
 A person ever saw.
 "You're happy, gay and well content
 But morbid, glum and sad,
 You're hale and hearty, never sick,
 Although your health is bad.
 You're lucky as an old horseshoe
 But still unfortunate;
 You'll live till ninety, but you may Pass out at thirty-eight."

Thus spoke the grave phrenologist,
 And with the greatest ease
 He very kindly shook my hand
 And said: "Five dollars please."
 I said: "You're welcome to it all,
 I'll start a fake bump shop myself,
 And soon own half the earth."

 Deacon Stubbs of our meetin' house started on a tour down to the city yesterday and there is much fear for his safety, as nobody has received any picture post cards yet. His wife told him before he left, not to blow out any gas nor in any money. The deacon, however, confided in some of his friends that he was goin' to have a good time and see the sights if it cost him ten shillin'. Deacons at hum and deacons abroad is two kinds of deacons. The last time the deacon went to the city he was bound to see all the public institutions and wandered into the pest house. He returned home, came down with the smallpox and it cost the taxpayers of this village $476.33 to keep him in quarantine and idleness. 'Nothin' like enjoyin' yourself, at somebody else's expense.

Heart to Heart Talks.
 By EDWIN A. NYE

"THE WORST BOY."
 He was the "worst boy in town."
 One day this boy and others engaged in a sort of expedition along the river bank. As they passed the bridge the forlorn "meow" of a cat was prolonged into a cry that was almost human.

It was a plea for help.
 The gang paused. Over on one of the low stone piers upon which the bridge was built was a lone, pussy sending up its Macedonian cry to come over and help.
 The poor thing had climbed down the skeleton steel plates to the pier and did not have sense enough to climb back the same way. Annoyed, it sent up its wail.
 The piteous plea got under the ragged jacket of the worst boy. Though he knew the water was cold, he began to take off his shoes and stockings.
 "Aw, Bill," said one, "it's only a cat. It'll get off all right. Let it go."
 "Shut your mouth," responded Bill. "I'm doin' this, and I know what I'm doin', and don't you forget it."
 The worst boy waded in and got the cat, which foolish pussy, in terror lost it be thrown into the water, yowled and scratched unmercifully.
 "Throw it in the water, Bill. All cats can swim."
 Halfway out the worst boy stopped, bent a fixed and ominous look on the speaker that caused a sudden silence and then waded out with the cat.
 Which proves—what?
 It proves what Dickens said—that there is a way, though it may be up a winding stair, to every human heart. The worst boy had the biggest heart, and the cat found a way to it.
 Do you wonder Garfield said he always felt like taking off his hat to a boy of the streets because of the possibilities under the ragged jacket?
 Garfield also said that—
 Our society is not like the society of Europe, which is like the strata of the earth—each layer holding down the one beneath it—but is like the waves of the sea, where "the lowest drop may rise and glisten on the topmost wave."
 Many a "worst boy in town" has risen from the depths to distinction.

CHURCH SOCIETY TO ERECT NEW EDIFICE

Congregation of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church Decides to Erect New Building.
 As the result of unanimous action taken by the congregation of St. John's Evangelical German Lutheran church, a new church building to take the place of the one now used as a house of worship on North Buff street, is to be built during the coming year. The matter was brought up recently at a meeting of the congregation, and it was decided that a new edifice is needed. A building composed of the pastor, Rev. S. W. Fuchs, as chairman, Robert Schleuter, George Rathen, Emil Pantz, William Hein, and Richard Teich has been appointed, and will hold a meeting at the parsonage on Friday evening, at which matters pertaining to the new structure will be discussed. As yet the plans are incomplete.
 The firmen will hold their annual decided is inadequate for the needs of the parish. The society is in a flourishing condition, and within the past three years, forty-five families have been received into the congregation.

SOUTH POLE

Made by authority of the London Geographical Society for Historical and Research Purposes.
 These pictures, taken in that far-off and mysterious country of eternal ice and snow, are without a doubt the crowning event in the art of motion photography. You are transported to the very edge of the South Pole. Every scene will fill you with wonder and awe at the beauty and vastness of this country, where ice is, and always will be reigning monarch. You will see for the first time in Moving Pictures the Setting of the Midnight Sun and that great unspanned waste of ice the Great Ice Barrier which will be shown in all its grandeur and massiveness.

Buying From Installment Houses-- Its Disadvantages

The lure of "$1 down and $1 per week" catches and brings many people to the net of the large city installment houses. The solicitors from these houses who canvass this city from door to door at least once a month find many people who will buy their goods because they can get a long time extension of credit. While to some classes this feature may be of temporary benefit the enormously large prices are a positive "hold-up" and far offset the benefit that might be gained through the credit. We have seen examples of the installment house plan of buying and it staggered us to think of anyone being so extravagant. Talk about the high cost of living, when people pay $5 for a $2 blanket or $7.50 for a rug that we sell for $3.75 why shouldn't living be high. Many of the local merchants are glad to extend credit to their patrons. You will save money; get better goods and more satisfaction generally if you trade in Janesville.

REHBERG'S

Pre-Inventory Sale of Suits and Overcoats

$11.75 and $14.75

NOW is the time when you'll recognize more than ever what a great overcoat store this is—we'll be taxed to our capacity but never beyond it; our organization runs too smoothly to let anything upset it. We'll show you hundreds of overcoats, a dozen styles—foreign ideas sufficiently Americanized to please you. American styles in endless assortments. Ulsters, convertible or regular, priced at $10 to $30. Most remarkable values on record are those we show in suits or overcoats at $11.75 and $14.75.

1912 Gave Me The Largest Dental Practice of All The Past Eleven Years In Janesville.

And this in the face of the fiercest competition a man ever had.

I keep free from any price agreement with other dentists, and so am not compelled on my honor to charge $10 for gold crowns.

I can furnish an honest heavy pure 22K gold crown for one-half that price.

And then also I now am able to so numb the facial nerves that there is absolutely no pain to the patient while I drill and fill the worst of teeth.

For this painless work there is an extra charge, but I find most people willing to pay a little extra to escape the former agony of the Dental chair.

When you come in, ask me for the painless work, and you will get it.

Simple Request.

An Irish conductor on the Payno avenue line was trying to make room for more passengers in his car during the rush hours the other night. As reported by a more or less truthful witness, this is what he said: "Fill them behind 'n take 'em places 'ar them in front, 'n 'ave room 'er them that's neither in front nor behind?"

SAM TALL SEVERELY INJURED BY A FALL

Topped Over Backward From a Ladder Twenty Feet From Ground—No Bones Broken.

Sam Tall, manager of the City Ice company, met with a painful accident late Tuesday afternoon when he fell from a ladder on the side of the lower ice house, twenty feet to the ground, and C. S. Atwood, his partner, who was below him on the same ladder, was knocked unconscious when Mr. Tall knocked him from the ladder to the ground. While no bones were broken, Mr. Tall was badly shaken up and the muscles of his back and legs severely strained. He was at once conveyed to his home, 521 Cornelia street, and Dr. Farnsworth was summoned. He was reported as resting easier today, although still very lame. Tall and Atwood had started up the ladder to reach the tower on top of the ice house where a motor was stored, used in harvesting ice. He carried a broom and a shovel in one hand and when twenty feet from the ground, ice on the mitten of the hand with which he was grasping the rounds of the ladder, caused him to lose his hold and he pitched over backwards to the ground. Atwood, who was just below him on the ladder, lost his balance and fell some twelve feet. He was rendered unconscious but revived sufficiently to help Mr. Tall to his feet and home. He suffered no serious injury. But for the fact that his fall was broken it is probable that Mr. Tall would have broken several bones, if not killed outright.

CASE AGAINST LYNCH DISMISSED BY COURT

Complainant and Witnesses Failed to Put in An Appearance When Case Was Called Today.

The case of the State versus John Lynch, charged with making an assault upon James Nevels of the town of Newark, which was reset for trial this morning, following the disagreement of the jury in the trial December 29, was dismissed by Judge Field this morning, the complainant and his witnesses failing to put in an appearance. The alleged offense is said to have been committed in the town of Newark on the evening of November 26 when Mr. Lynch called to serve a writ of attachment. Arthur Cunningham was attorney for the defendant and Cornelius Buckley was counsel for the complainant, who it is said has moved into Illinois.

HAVE ESTABLISHED A NEW BRANCH FACTORY

Thoroughgood and Company Purchase Minneapolis Concern and Will Run Both Businesses.

By the purchase of the D. L. Tyson box factory, located at Minneapolis, Minn., the Thoroughgood company of this city have established a large branch in this city, which will increase their field of activity and bring them into closer competition with some of the largest concerns of the country.

The Minneapolis plant will be run independent of the Janesville factory, although a branch concern, it is located at 202-204 Third Street North, in the Minnesota city and employs some twenty-five hands.

W. R. Cairns, long connected with the business on the road, will be associated with the local company and will look after the output of the Minneapolis branch as well as of the Janesville company.

The local company will cut all the lumber for the two plants, importing its cedar in square logs and inch planks direct from Cuba, and buying its hardware from Wisconsin mills.

A speaking of the purchase, Mr. G. F. Kimball, president of the Thoroughgood company, said today: "We have purchased the D. L. Tyson plant in Minneapolis to take care of the immediate territory in the northwest and also to increase our sales generally. For the present Mr. Tyson will remain in charge of the Minneapolis branch. W. R. Cairns, long prominent in the box trade, is now associated with us and will act as sales agent for both factories on the road. The Minneapolis plant has the same output as the local factory, namely two thousand boxes per day, but we expect to increase this materially as soon as business demands it. For the present we shall cut all the lumber for both factories, at Janesville. Our contract calls for square cedar logs from Cuba direct, which we will cut here, as well as inch cedar planking. The square log is an experiment, but if successful will import them in the future entirely."

When asked if the proposed change might not mean increasing the output of the local factory and employing more labor, Mr. Kimball said: "This will of course come in time. At present we are employing some fifty hands here and twenty-five in Minneapolis and doubtless will have to increase this force very materially in time. Janesville will continue to be the head office of the company as in the past."

The Thoroughgood company was organized in 1896 and has a capital stock of fifty thousand dollars, Mr. Kimball being president.

DECLARES HUSBAND LIVED WITH HER BUT FOUR DAYS

Hattie E. Hamer Secures Divorce in Circuit Court Tuesday—Judge Grimm presiding.

Declaring that her husband had lived with her but four days since their marriage several years ago, Hattie E. Hamer, until recently a resident of this city, but now a clerk in Gimbel Brothers' store at Milwaukee, secured a divorce from her husband, Lyle Hamer, who now resides at Monroe. The divorce was granted by Judge Grimm yesterday afternoon. Desertion and non-support were the grounds.

Anna Voight secured a divorce from Oscar Voigt Tuesday on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and that the defendant was a habitual drunkard. Both the parties are from Edgerton.

Judge Grimm will be at the circuit court chambers tomorrow afternoon to dispose of several cases which will come up at that time.

WILL ALLOW LADIES USE OF NEW ALLEYS

Y. M. C. A. Directors Will Make Provision for Women to Use Bowling Alley in Remodeled Building.

Arrangements will be made by the Y. M. C. A. directors which will allow ladies the use of the new Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys a part of each day. According to the plans for the remodeling of the present building three bowling alleys will be placed in the present gymnasium in the basement. A number of subscribers to the improvement fund have expressed the wish that women might be given the privilege of using the bowling facilities and such an opportunity will be provided according to the present intentions.

Any persons who would care to see the plans for the proposed alterations may make their desire known at the Y. M. C. A. office and they will be accommodated. It is well worth one's time to look over the modern improved arrangement which will give the city one of the finest Y. M. C. A. buildings in the state.

Each class of boys that will use the new gymnasium, which with a running track, will be located on the second floor where the present auditorium is now located, will have a separate locker room with bath conveniences. The various classes are divided according to ages as follows: sub-juniors, 8 to 10; juniors, 10 to 12; B. juniors, 12 to 15; intermediates, 15 to 18; seniors, 15 and above, and business men. The dimensions of the new gymnasium are 72x42 feet.

The auditorium and banquet room on the first floor will accommodate 500 persons comfortably. Throughout the building special attention will be paid to lighting and ventilation.

With these excellent changes in view and a large part of the money contributed, any persons who can give a subscription to aid in closing up the list should do so at once in order that the work may be started as soon as possible. Payments on the installment plan make it possible for nearly everyone to share in the building of this monument of generosity and enterprise for the young men of this city.

Only One Way To Stomach Health

Eat Three Meals a Day and Let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets
Digest Them. The Stomach
Soon Recovers
After This Brief Rest.

The very worst thing you can do is to starve yourself to overcome stomach misery. Make your meals just as comprehensive as possible. Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets freely for awhile and all trace of stomach trouble will be gone. Dieting is a fallacy. The intensive farming and gardening of the present day forces such quick results that our dietary is lacking in the quantity of flesh-forming elements of former days. Thus we get a surplus of starch; meats are often depopulated of much of their nutritive quality; the soil is depleted of the amount of vegetable salts it ought to have. We do not obtain the natural ripened fruits and vegetables hence the stomach requires assistance to digest an overabundance of fibrous material and take care of fruit acids that Nature had no chance to convert into grape sugar. So we need more persin than the system can supply; more diastase, more of the natural tonic and preservative properties which ripened vegetation should give us. This deficiency is made up in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is the only way to have stomach-health under modern conditions.

Try just one box and you will never want to be without this wonderful remedy for stomach troubles. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain an ingredient of one grain of which will digest 3,000 grains of food. They are so entirely harmless because they have absolutely no effect on the system one way or another except to do just the one thing—digest food.

Every drug store sells and recommends Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The price is 50 cents per box.

They may prance around in congress to do and fro; as they prance around in days of long ago; but the wild and woolly game never more will seem the same, since the voters put the lid on Uncle Joe. Oh, a stranger in the house will hold his chair; and a stranger at his desk will rip and swear; and the whiskers that we knew never more will be in view, some one else's bunch of handkerchiefs will be there. Oh, we'll miss that good old face with its face with its face.

cigar! And we'll miss the raucous snorting of the cat! Though the legislative men may get milling now and then, they'll miss the scolding of Henry of Navarre. And the Murdocks and the Norrises and those who were always reaching out for Uncle's nose, if they want to start a scrap must shake up a weaker chap, for they've lost the hardest hitting of their foes. Oh, the voters rose and exercised their power and they have Uncle Joe a lemon sour; they extinguished all the light of the beacon on the height, and they paralyzed the watchman on the tower. Back to Danville and the dump goes Uncle Joe, and the zephyrs through his galsways easily blow; and though enemies declare that his proper place is there, oh, I kind of sort of hate to see him go.

NO INDIGESTION, GAS OR A SOUR STOMACH.

"Pape's Diapiesin" Stops Fermentation and Makes Your Upset Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acid and eructate indigestible food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapiesin and in five minutes you truly will wonder what became of the indigestion distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapiesin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapiesin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

PREDICTS A SECOND SEVERE STORM WAVE

Foster Bureau Forecasts a General
Blizzard for the Week of January 20th.

Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Jan. 13 to 17, warm wave 12 to 16, cool wave 15 to 19. General averages of this disturbance temperatures will be about normal. Not much force to the storms till they reach eastern sections. Not much precipitation anywhere but more east of meridian 90 than west of it. About normal precipitation west of Rockies.

The amount of winter precipitation is often of great importance. Shows protect, the winter wheat and we are not expecting much snow during January. As January is expected to be warmer than usual in the great central valleys moisture will have an opportunity to go into the soil in large sections of the winter wheat area but our calculations do not indicate much rain for January.

Wherever the soil is not well soaked with water at the beginning of next crop season the prospect will not be good for the early maturing crops and the January precipitation does not promise the necessary moisture, particularly west of meridian 90. Canada is promised better precipitation in January than the States.

A Radical Storm.
Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about January 18, cross Pacific slope by close of 19, great central valleys 20 to 22, eastern sections 23. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Jan. 18, great central valleys 20, eastern sections 23. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about January 21, great central valleys 23, eastern sections 25.

This will be a radical storm from coast to coast. A great high temperature wave followed by a cold wave and a northern blizzard. All parts of the continent will feel the effects of this great winter storm and very changeable weather will continue to end of January.

False theories about vegetable physiology are the evil geni of agriculture. We are yet in the dark ages of plant life and hold to the same ideas as do the Hottentots about vegetation gutting its food from the soil. Whatever is volatile and evaporates from the soil and goes into the atmosphere may become plant food, but the roots of plants never take plant food from the soil.

Plants take all their food from the top surface of the leaves, exhale the gases through the under surfaces of the leaves, do not excrete anything, but deposit the solid substance in the body of the plants and the roots conduct the electrical force into the earth.

As to Soil Conditions.
If the soil becomes dry it will not conduct the electrical force into the earth and therefore the necessity of moisture. Clay soils will produce vegetation if it contains plenty of moisture, but clay is not as good an electric conductor as vegetable mold and that is the difference between clay and the dark soils.

As a remedy for clay fields that have but little of the vegetable molds we are advocating the punching of holes in the clay to hold the moisture instead of deep plowing of the clay. We believe that by this means the abandoned clay fields may be returned to fertility. This could be tested in abandoned fields without planting grain or cotton. Punch holes in parts of the field, leaving other parts as they are in the abandoned state. Then let the growth of the weeds determine whether punching holes in the clay is a benefit.

If this scheme will work someone will invent a machine for the purpose. This machine may be used with or without plowing the clay fields. The machine could be run after the plow. Then the loose plowed clay would loosely fill the holes but they would still hold sufficient moisture.

SIREWALK KETCHES.

DIVORCE.
(By Howard L. Raun.)

DIVORCE is a form of surgical operation which is performed for the purpose of removing an incubus. Sometimes the incubus objects to being removed and sets up a counter claim, in which case it is necessary to claim, in which case it is necessary to claim, in which case it is necessary to claim.

Divorce is an American custom which has been legalized to such an extent that the marriage contract is about as binding as a promissory note drawn up on Sunday by a feeble-minded idiot. It has gotten so that people can secure a good, water-tight divorce in this country for the price of a second-hand bedstead, but it is not so in other lands. In India, if a man's wife refuses to get up in the morning and split the kindling and bed down the cow, he doesn't have to hire some jackleg lawyer in order to secure his rights. All he has to do is to tie a couple of cat-irons about her neck and throw her into the river Ganges, then go out and buy another wife with a piece of telephone wire. Married life in India is only the degree removed from Heaven.

Divorce is granted on any ground that happens to come up first in the mind of the plaintiff, and the courts stand ready to ratify it at so much per rat. It is getting so that a man can't kick his wife several times in rapid succession or accuse her of being a female horse thief without having to employ a high-priced attorney to vindicate his character. On the other hand, a wife can go ahead and make the coffee without any egg in it for years, and if the husband tries to secure a divorce on the strength of it he will be thrown out of court so fast that he can see the Big Dipper for a week.

Alimony is an expensive attachment to divorce which is calculated to soothe the lacerated feelings of the divorcee. It is one of the most costly poultices in all materia medica. Some men prefer to let go of the family cookstove and other household treasures rather than pay alimony, while others are willing to write any number of checks rather than put up with what they received at the hands of the officiating clergyman.

Thoughts on Life.

"Life is silly—that is, not life, but the way we live it." Mrs. Lethbury was a woman most of whose opinions were heirlooms. She was proud of their age and saw no reason for discarding them while they were still serviceable.—The Mission of Jane.

THE BEST TEACHER

Old Experience Still Holds the Palm
For real practical reliability and something to swear by, experience—plain old experience—is able to carry a big load yet without getting swayed.

A Western woman found some things about food from Old Experience a good, reliable teacher. She writes:

"I think I have used almost every breakfast food manufactured, but none equal Grape-Nuts in my estimation."

"I was greatly bothered with weak stomach and indigestion, with formation of gas after eating, and tried many remedies for it but did not find relief. Then I decided I must diet and see if I could overcome the difficulty that way. My choice of food was Grape-Nuts because the doctor told me I could not digest starchy food."

Grape-Nuts food has been of great benefit to me for I feel like a different person since I began to eat it. It is wonderful to me how strong my nerves have become. I advise everyone to try it, for experience is the best teacher."

"If you have any stomach trouble—can't digest your food, use Grape-Nuts food for breakfast at least, and you won't be able to praise it enough when you see how different you feel." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

RURAL SCHOOLS ARE FORGING TO FRONT

There are signs that the rural schools are at last coming into their own. Long the neglected factor in American education, they are now in progress of a reorganization that is as thoroughgoing as it is necessary.

It is not merely that educators have turned their attention to the problem; it is not merely that much is currently written on the subject (one-fourth of the bulletins published in 1912 by the United States Bureau of Education deal directly with rural education); it is rather that theory has given place to practice; that the work of rural education is actually under way.

Teachers of experience armed with the essential facts of rural life, acquainted with the needs of the communities they serve, sincere in their faith in the country as the place to live in and build up citizenship, are doing for the rural districts what the pioneer teachers of former generations did for the city and town.

There rural teachers are actually accomplishing the work that has so long been merely talked about. Old one-room ramshackle schoolhouses are torn down to make way for attractive little buildings, not necessarily larger than the old, but built on sound principles of beauty and utility; or, frequently, the place of the discarded building has been taken by the more imposing symbol of educational efficiency.

Even the literature on rural education shows the effects of the practical application of what were formerly only theories. Current bulletins of the Bureau of Education describe the training of rural school teachers, not as something that might be done, but as something that has been done and is done every day. It is no longer the problem of knowing what ought to be done, but of doing it—the problem of disseminating the knowledge that is already available.

The realization of the significance of rural education marks a turning point in American history. For the better part of a century American education developed one-sidedly—as a city and town matter. To it in the country was to be isolated from the better things of civilization—including education. That the population of the United States was and is predominantly rural did not seem to enter the question. There was a feeling that the country could take care of itself; that the "little red school-house" could accomplish everything with nothing; that there was an inexhaustible supply of country boys and girls willing to do janitor chores and perform the numerous other duties of the old-time schoolmaster, all for a few dollars per week, with utter disregard of the increased cost of living.

The awakening of this state of blissful indifference toward country life and country education did not come until the drift from country to city had become one of the startling phenomena of the age. Then economists exhorted to "stay on the farm," but the exhortation came too late. What boy was going to stay on the farm when opportunity seemed to be everywhere else? There were no adequate educational facilities for him in the country; nothing to guide him in his desire to get along in the world; so he went to join the city throng and help diminish the producing power of the fundamental class in society—the agriculturalists.

Rural education can now immediately and entirely reverse this process, but it is the first essential step. Better rural schools will not only tend to equalize the advantages of city and country in educational opportunity; they will meet the greatest economic need of our time by increasing the efficiency of the coming generation as producers on the land.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Good fortune awaits at the end of a journey or after some change in your affairs. You will form new friendships and the old friends will prove their worth.

Those born today will be of strong natures and will usually win out in their undertakings. Their danger will be from overdoing things and from lack of consideration for others. They should be taught kindness.

Sum of $1057.25 in Fines and Penalties Was Paid in Municipal Court During 1912.

The sum of one thousand and fifty seven dollars and twenty-five cents was paid to the Municipal Court in fines and penalties during the last year according to the reports of A. C. Thorpe, Clerk of the Municipal Court. Of this sum $880.25 was paid in fines, and $177 in penalties, penalties being imposed for violations of city ordinances, and fines for infractions of state laws. More than half of the fine money—$573 was paid by 166 persons found guilty of intoxication. This number represents only a fraction, not more than one-fourth of the number convicted of that offense, the remainder serving jail terms. Following is given a list of the number of fines and penalties imposed for different offenses. Convictions punished by terms of imprisonment are not enumerated.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Father expects altogether too much from the ladies of the household.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY A.C. MCCLURG & CO.

The Sergeant caught the glimpse, half believing the vision a phantasm of the brain; he had seen her face, white, frightened, agonized, yet it could not have been real. He tripped over the stone wall and half fell, but ran on, his mind in a turmoil, but certain some one was racing before him down the dark ravine. There had been a woman there! He could not quite blot that out—but not she; not Molly McDonald. If—if it were she; if he had really seen her face in the flare, if it was no dream, then what? Why, he must screen her from discovery, give her opportunity to slip away. This was the one vague, dim thought which took possession of the man. It occurred all else; it sent him blindly crashing over the edge of the ravine. He heard the sentry at his right cry hoarsely, he heard excited shouts from the open windows of the barracks; then his feet struck a man's body, and he went down headlong.

Almost at the instant the sentry was upon him, a gun-muzzle pressing him back as he attempted to rise. "Be still, ye hell-bound," was the gruff order, "or I'll blow ye to kingdom come! Sergeant of the guard, quick! Here! Post Number Six!" Hamlin lay still, half stunned by the shock of his fall, yet conscious that the delay, this mistake of the sentry, would afford her ample chance for escape. He could hear men running toward them, and his eyes caught the yellow, bobbing light of a lantern. His hand reached out and touched the body over which he had fallen, feeling a military button, and the clasp of a belt—it was a soldier then who had been shot. Could she have done it?

Or did he know who did? Whatever the truth might be, he would hold his tongue; let them suppose him guilty for the time being; he could establish innocence easily enough when it came to trial. These thoughts flashed through his mind swiftly; then the light of the lantern gleamed in his eyes, and he saw the faces clustered about.

"All right, Mapes," commanded the man with the light. "Let the fellow up until I get a look at him. Who the hell are you?"

"Sergeant Hamlin, Seventh Cavalry."

"Darned if it ain't. Say, what does all this mean, anyhow? Who's shot? Turn the body over, somebody. By God! It's Lieutenant Gaskins!"

Hamlin's heart seemed to leap into his throat and choke him; for an instant he felt faint, dazed, staring down into the still face gazing under the rays of the lantern. Gaskins! Then she was concerned in the affair; he really had seen her hiding there against the wall. And the man's eyes were open, were staring in bewilderment at the faces. The Sergeant of the Guard thrust the lantern closer.

"Lift his head, some o' yer the man's alive. Copley, get some water, an' two of yer run for the stretcher—leg it now. We'll have yer out o' here in a minute, Lieutenant. What happened, sir? Who shot yer?"

Gaskins' dulled eyes strayed from the speaker's face until he saw Hamlin, still firmly gripped by the sentry. His lips drew back revealing his teeth, his eyes narrowing.

"That's the one," he said faintly. "You've got him!"

One hand went to his side in a spasm of pain, and he fainted. The Sergeant laid him back limp on the grass, and stood up.

"Where is your gun, Hamlin?" "I dropped it when I fell over the Lieutenant's body. It must be back of you."

Some one picked the weapon up, and held it to the light, turning the chambers.

"Two shots gone, Sergeant."

"We heard three; likely the Lieutenant got in one of them. Sentry, what do you know about this?"

Mapes scratched his head, the fingers of his other hand gripping the prisoner's shoulder.

"Not so awful much," he replied.

Heve this 'was done through any desire to injure; the Lieutenant had no pause for personal dislike which would account for such an accusation. They had only met once, and then briefly. There was no rivalry between them, no animosity. To be sure, Gaskins had been domineering, threatening to report a small breach of discipline, but in this his words and actions had been no more offensive than was common among young officers of his quality. The Sergeant had passed all memory of that long ago. It never occurred to him now as of the slightest importance. Far more probable did it appear that Gaskins' only motive was to shield the girl from possible suspicion. When he had realized that Hamlin was a prisoner, that for some reason he had been seized for the crime, he had grasped the opportunity to point him out as the assassin, and thus delay pursuit. The chances were the wounded man did not even recognize who the victim was—he had blindly grasped at the first straw.

But suppose he had been mistaken? Suppose that woman hiding there was some one else? Suppose he had imagined a resemblance in that sudden flash of revelation? What then? Would she care enough to come to him when she learned of the arrest? He laughed at the thought, yet it was a bitter laugh, for it brought back a new realization of the chasm between them. Major McDonald's daughter interesting herself in a guard-house prisoner! More than likely she would promptly forget that she had ever before heard his name. He must be growing crazy to presume that she permitted him to remain on her list of friendship.

He got up and paced the cell, noting as he did so how closely he was watched by the guard.

"Have you heard how badly the Lieutenant was hurt?" he asked, approaching the door.

The sentry glanced down the corridor.

"He'll pull out, all right," he replied confidentially, his lips close to the door. "Notin' vital punctured. You better go to bed, an' forget it till mornin'."

"All right, pardner," and Hamlin returned to the cot. "Turn the light down a little, will you? There, that's better. My conscience won't trouble me, but that glare did."

With his face to the stone wall he fell asleep.

CHAPTER XV.

An Old Acquaintance.

It was late in the forenoon when the heavily armed guard marched Hamlin across to the commandant's office. He had been surprised at the delay, but had enjoyed ample opportunity to plan a course of action, and decide how best to meet the questions which would be asked. He could clear himself without involving her, without even a mention of her presence, and this knowledge left him confident and at ease.

There were half a dozen officers gathered in the small room, the gray-bearded Colonel in command, sitting behind a table, with Major McDonald at his right, and the others wherever they could find standing room. Hamlin saluted, and stood at attention, his gray eyes on the face of the man who surveyed him across the table.

"Sergeant," the Colonel said rather brusquely, "you came in last night with 'A' troop, did you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"You Better Go to Bed an' Forget it Till Mornin'!"

Hamlin could not get be-trusquely, "you came in last night with 'A' troop, did you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"You Better Go to Bed an' Forget it Till Mornin'!"

"Had you ever met Lieutenant Gaskins before?"

"Once," he pulled me out of a bad scrape with a bunch of Indians out on the trail a few months ago."

"The same fellow I spoke to you about," commented McDonald quietly. "The attack on the stage."

The Colonel nodded, without removing his eyes from the Sergeant's face.

"Yes, I know about that," he said. "And that was the only occasion of your meeting?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, Sergeant Hamlin, I purpose being perfectly frank with you. There are two or three matters not easily explained about this affair. I am satisfied of your innocence; that you were not directly concerned in the shooting of Lieutenant Gaskins. Men of your troop state that you were in barracks when the shots were fired, and the wound was not made by a service revolver, but by a much smaller weapon. Yet there are circumstances which puzzle us, but which, no doubt, you can explain. Two shots had been fired from your revolver, and he pushed the weapon across the table.

"I rode ahead of the troop in march yesterday," Hamlin explained, "and fired twice at a jack-rabbit. I must have neglected to replace the cartridges. Private Stone was with me."

"Why did you submit to arrest so easily, without any attempt to clear yourself?"

The Sergeant's gray eyes smiled, but his response was quietly respectful.

"I was condemned before I really knew what had occurred, sir. The sentry, the Sergeant of the guard, and the Lieutenant all insisted that I was guilty. They permitted me no opportunity to explain. I thought if just as well to remain quiet, and let the affair straighten itself out."

"Yet your action threw us completely off the trail," broke in McDonald impatiently. "It permitted the really guilty parties to escape. Did you see any one?"

"Black smudges merely, Major, apparently running toward the ravine. My eyes were blinded, leaping from a lighted room."

McDonald leaned forward eagerly, one hand tapping the table.

"Was one of them a woman?" he questioned sharply.

Hamlin's heart leaped into his throat, but he held himself motionless.

"They were indistinguishable, sir; mere shadows. Have you reason to suspect there may have been a woman involved?"

An Honest Druggist Often Gives Good Advice.

It gives me great pleasure to take this method of thanking you for what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has done for my wife and at the same time to cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers from kidney trouble.

My wife had suffered terribly from kidney disease and had tried all kinds of patent medicines with no success, until a druggist recommended Swamp-Root. That brought the only relief she has had in years and she is now feeling better than ever she ever did before. I believe this is due entirely to Swamp-Root and stand firm in my statement when I say that Swamp-Root is the king of all kidney remedies. You have my consent to publish this statement at any time in the interest of humanity.

DINNER STORIES

Two brothers, each of whom is nearly six feet and a half tall, were one day introduced by an acquaintance to a young lady. As she sat gazing up at the pair of giants in wonder and awe, she exclaimed: "Great heavens! Suppose there had been only one of you."

Lord Charles Beresford told of one of his tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford. One day he asked how business was. "Grand, me lord!" she exclaimed. "I now have the luckiest little hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness, it was never a day idle since I got it."

To test a sentry an officer, after the salute, said: "Let me see your rifle."

The recruit handed it over, whereupon the officer said in disgust: "You're a fine soldier! You've given me a rifle that is as good as dead."

New Orleans Battle Anniversary.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 8.—The city, state and national flags were raised on the City Hall today in commemoration of the ninety-eighth anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, which occurred January 8, 1815. The day is a legal holiday in the state of Louisiana.
